

Object & Still Life Artists at the May 2015 Art Show

David Palmer

"...like Rosenquist, Lichtenstein, and others over the past half-century who have painted the visual racket of a consumer society, Palmer manifests not so much a love-hate relationship with the modern condition of image assault as an awe at its immensity and the thoroughness of its presence in our consciousness." - Peter Frank

SPACE 137

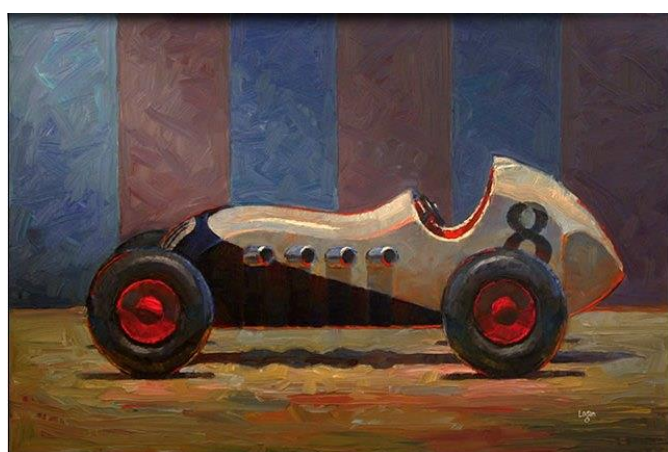

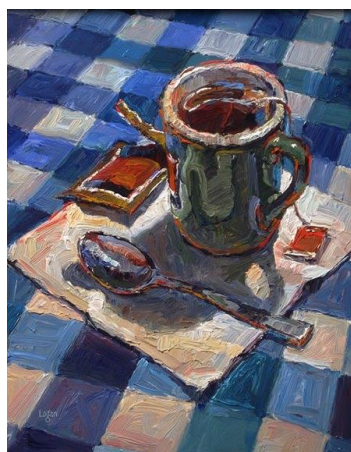

Eul Hurley

"Often my themes are combinations of mundane objects, juxtaposed in whimsical scenario but formally unified with adherence to form and shape."

Raymond Logan

"Over the years I have watched myself meticulously pick my subject matter- whether it be people, places or things- based on two innate criteria: challenge and access. The subject must challenge me to express myself and grow through my duking it out with that particular subject."

SPACE 140

Bradford Salamon

Salamon is well known throughout Southern California for his paintings of individuals who "engage in profound human scenarios." He has expanded his repertoire in several directions, including the intimate portraits of vintage objects.
