DESCRIPTION:

836 Greenway

Both Spanish and Italian elements are incorporated into the design of this two story residence. Stucco-sided and capped by a tiled roof, the house is partially hidden by a dense screen of greenery across the facade. Like its neighbor to the south, the house is strongly horizontal in emphasis, due to the breadth of the facade and the continuous roofline which is punctuated by brackets. An off-center focus is established by the impressive entry, an arched opening with a rusticated surround and a denticulated broken pediment with an urn. To the left (north) of the entry, an arcaded loggia overlooks a balustraded terrace. Located at the same distance from the entrance, a large opening to the south is obscured by the trees in front. Other features which are visible include casement windows, iron balconets and grilles, a porte cochere on the north and a balcony on the south. No alterations were observed or documented.
