City of Beverly Hills Launches Sustainability Workshop Series This Month

Beverly Hills, CA (January 14, 2020) – Beginning January 30, the City of Beverly Hills will be launching a series of free, educational workshops addressing key sustainability practices. Each workshop, led by experts in the field, will be dedicated to one of the following topics: Circular Economics, Food Waste and Reduction and Water Resources.

“The City of Beverly Hills is committed to letting its businesses and residents know about the impacts of climate change and what we, as a community, can do to minimize our carbon footprint,” says Shana Epstein, Director of Public Works. “This workshop series is an example of our dedication to get the word out and be part of a solution.”

Workshop speakers include: Dr. Woodrow W. Clark II, a Beverly Hills resident and former contributing scientist to the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, which was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 2007 along with Al Gore; Bernadet Garcia-Silva, Project Manager for the Los Angeles County Food Redistribution Initiative (LACFRI) and Caryn Mandelbaum who oversees the Water Program at Environment Now, a nonprofit that partners with the Leonardo DiCaprio Foundation.

Location:
Beverly Hills City Hall, Municipal Gallery
455 N. Rexford Dr., Beverly Hills, CA 90210

Dates: January 30, February 12 and March 11; 6:30 p.m. – 7:30 p.m.
