DESCRIPTION:

A two story front gable wing is the dominant element of this stucco sided and tile roofed Spanish dwelling. To the north (right) a one story, shed roofed wing contains a porte cochere formed by a flattened arch. To the south, a side gable tops a one story wing pierced by shuttered casement windows. Beneath a triangular tiled vent in the apex of the gable, two shuttered casements of different sizes appear in the upper floor of the two story block. A broad, fixed pane, also flanked by shutters, is located in one half of the lower story while the entry is located in the other half. Topped by arched corbelling which marks a partial second story overhang, the entry is arched and deeply recessed. Lanterns and a perforated stucco vent flank the opening. The facade appears to be unaltered.
