

The Los Angeles Art Association joins the artSHOW this weekend in Space 226A, near the center of the event.

Daniel Leighton is an Augmented Reality artist and iPad painter. He will bring his interactive devices for the public to play with! Art Critic Shana Nys Dambrot describes Daniel's app: "a viewing portal" into what is "tempting to describe as a parallel universe."

Jason Lockyer's current cardboard sculptures highlight grotesque and elegant aspects of nature, using insects and plants. A large part of Jason's inspiration comes from the suburbs of Philadelphia, where he and his father, a scientific illustrator, shared a passion for nature and art. Jason graduated from the Tyler School of Art with a BFA in Painting. Born and raised in Philly, Jason Lockyer is currently living and working in Los Angeles.
