DESCRIPTION:

This two story Spanish style house has a modified U-shaped facade, with a front gable wing on the north and a hipped roof wing on the south. The roof is tiled and the house is clothed in stucco. In the recess between the two facade projections, the entry is framed by a scalloped arch. Above it the spandrels swell to form a large iron-railed corbel, which acts as a balconet. Other notable features include flat- and round-headed casements, lower story balconets, and a triangular, tiled vent in the apex of the gable. No alterations were noted.
