DESCRIPTION:

Stucco siding, gabled tile roofs, and a distinctive architectural vocabulary identify this one and two story home as Spanish Colonial Revival in style. Its most notable elements are a buttressed living room wing on the north, a shed-roofed, arched porte cochere on the south, and a three-bay arcaded porch between the two. Arches also appear on some windows and in the garage doors in the rear. A second story balcony has a diamond-patterned railing and decorative wood brackets. Some windows have been reglazed and the stucco has been re-textured.
