DESCRIPTION:

A rare example of the Craftsman style in Beverly Hills, this two story home is effectively screened from view by large deodar trees. Its dark green shingle siding and broadly pitched, overhanging side gable roof further integrate the structure with the landscape. The asymmetrical plan and massing features a porch (now glassed-in) on the south and a second story, smaller than the first, set back on the north. Window boxes and shutters (a later addition) enhance the two-over-two double-hung sash. Although altered, the residence preserves the essential flavor of Craftsman design.
