DESCRIPTION:

Occupying a double lot at the southeast corner of Alpine and Sunset, this is an expansive two story residence in the American Colonial Revival style. The principal volume is parallel to the street, surmounted by a steeply pitched, shingled hip roof, and sheathed in brick on the lower story and stucco on the upper story. Finials and round-headed dormer vents punctuate the roof; a tall brick chimney is braced at the south end. Fenestration defines four bays on the lower story, with a pair of shuttered casements on the north and the entry, recessed behind a flattened arch and a diamond-paned bay window on the south. Shuttered casement windows with balconets appear on the upper floor. To either side of the main section of the house, one story wings with hipped roofs are set at an angle. The south wing is separated from the main house by a porte cochere. Given prominence by its size, styling, and location, this house appears unaltered from old postcards of it, with the exception of the sheathing of the lower story.
