DESCRIPTION:

324 Camden:

This pleasant example of the Spanish Colonial Revival style exhibits many of the details associated with the genre. From its stucco sheathing to its use of red tile as a roofing material, the residence is similar in plan, massing, and setback to others in the grouping. Landscaping is attractive. The uneven rake of the front gable is a common detail used in a number of homes throughout the tract. An arched opening leads to the courtyard. Two stucco screens are visible on the second story.
