BUILDER: Koerner & Gage

DESCRIPTION:

Stucco siding and horizontal massing indicate that this one and two story residence was originally Spanish in style, but the tile has apparently been removed from the gabled roof. Little can be seen of the house, whose west facade is treated as a nearly unbroken wall in the Mexican manner. A stout chimney bisects this elevation, which contains a flat-headed entry offset to the north. Decorative ironwork has been added to the door surround. Sited on the northeast corner of Alpine and Lomitas, the house may be organized around a central courtyard.
